WEDNESDAY MORNING MAY 11 1864

No flag but the Old Banner of Red White and Blue
With the stars each in turn like a true
Arise and defy the arm of the brave
Whose blood fought the flag over your country and grave

A True Bill

The Democratic party of Oregon is now on trial at the bar of public opinion We charge it with being in league with treason false to the interests of republican freedom unwilling to aid the Government in putting down a rebellion, the existence of which it admits, and with doing everything in its power to encourage opposition to the Government It is guilty of sympathizing with the South in its efforts to break up the Republic and though it has made it in binding burdens grievous to be borne, upon the Nation, it now refuses to touch the heavy load with one of its fingers, except to make it more severe and intolerable and thereby cause the country to be utterly crushed It repudiates all patriotism, denounces all loyalty and seeks its restoration to power, only that it may again fasten upon the Nation the political system which has made the white land the sport of demagogues, and the slave of slavery It does not deserve the sympathy or support of any intelligent man, who loves the institutions of liberty, and as a degenerate and corrupt faction, it ought only to embrace among its adherents, those who are at heart traitors,—who love slavery better than freedom and who would prefer the success of the rebellion to the triumph of the Republic over all its enemies

Such is the Democratic party these are its high crimes and its transcendant wickedness For these, it must be condemned by the impartial judgment of the patriotic people of Oregon The proofs are overwhelming and irresistible—no evasion or eloquence on the part of its misguided or selfish defenders can save it from the verdict of popular wrath which its own sympathy with treason has invoked, or from the just repudiation which it invites because while it admits that a rebellion exists, it dares not express a single word of encouragement to the Government in its efforts to save the country, nor even declare its wish or hope that treason may be checked or defeated

THE GREAT BATTLE —The loyal hearts of our whole community were greatly cheered yesterday by the intelligence furnished by our dispatch Though but a rumor it seemed so reasonable and well founded, that all were anxious to believe that the brave Grant had added another to the thick laurels which he has so nobly and so faithfully won For many months, we have been anxiously but hopefully waiting for good tidings,—for decisive proof that the rebellion could not withstand the power and energy of the Government during the spring campaign we feel sure that when the impending blow was struck, its consequences must be terrible and crushing The whole strength of the Army of the Potomac, aided by the forces under General Benjamin F. Butler is concentrated upon Lee and the defences of Richmond, and it is fully apparent from the dispatches published this morning, though our losses have been severe, including the death and wounding of many distinguished officers a great victory was gained. The nation will now breathe freely once more, and confiding in the wisdom and undaunted bravery of the Hero of Vicksburg, will "thank God and take courage"

AFRAID OF COMPETITION —There is something very ridiculous in the talk of a man like Col Kelly against "negro equality," as a thing to be feared Certainly he does not think he is in any danger of being deprived of all just merit by allowing negroes their natural rights, under the laws of a free republic. Doubtless some, perhaps the greater part of the negroes, if restored to freedom might become more intelligent and loyal than the majority of the Democratic party has proved to be, but that is no reason why white men, who are not afraid of competition, should keep negroes in bondage We never hear a noisy Democrat, frightfully yelling against negro-equality without suspecting that he is unwilling to risk his intelligence and capacities against those of the negro, if made free, and therefore in self defense, he favors slavery Loyal white men with average abilities, have no such fears, and therefore are not cleared by these Democratic howlings. We are not sure but the country would gain by exchanging that kind of Democrats for an equal number of intelligent contrabands, both in patriotism and good sense—so many people think, and we confess we have no such prejudice as would lead us greatly to prefer the first for the last

A SECESSION —Our neighbor, Mr Stout proposes to go to Lafayette to make a speech to morrow It can hardly be supposed that he will not improve the opportunity to express his earnest thanksgiving and joy at the glad news of the success which has crowned the efforts of our noble army in Virginia Of course he will call for cheers for Grant,—three and three times three—and if the Democrats to whom he speaks will not respond he will show a proper self respect by putting on his hat, and leaving them alone in their treason

At the city election in Eugene city, May 2d, the following officers were elected President J B Underwood, Trustees, I B Dunn, J J Walton, Jr, E F Skinner J H McClung and T G Hendricks

MR NESMITH'S SPEECH IN REGARD TO THE OREGON MINT —The Salem Union gives a brief report of the remarks of Mr Nesmith in which he animadverted very severely upon the conduct of the Senate Finance Committee, who he complained, had infringed the common law of the Senate in having referred the proposed measure (after having heard the representations of the Oregon delegation, who might be supposed to know something about) to the Secretary of the Treasury who having no information himself upon the subject referred it to the Director of the Mint at Philadelphia, one James Pollock who knew less than any other person consulted, and who sent back a communication suggesting that now a mint establishments tended toward National disintegration

The Senator went on to say that after he had reported that the first bill to establish a branch mint at Portland had been favorably acted upon by the Committee of the Treasury Department and thence to the Senate with the recommendation of the parent Mint at the City of Philadelphia, he was exceedingly astonished to find the very persons who had previously lavished the most extensive encomiums upon the measure, and held the most flattering hopes of his immediate passage, the worst foes it had been required His bill had returned from its peregrinations, hawked at, torn and dilapidated by the company which it had kept, and its mangled remains now laid before him in the shape of a recommendation for an assay office He said that when he should return to his practical and unsophisticated people to give an account of all the deeds done in this body, they will ask why their prayer for a branch Mint was not responded to He would have to own with shame and confusion that it was because Pollock has opposed to it He could scarcely tell the Senate with a straight face, his people would believe when he informed them that before a branch Mint could be established, one James Pollock must be consulted and if he deliberately tell his people that the proposed Pollock had any other ground for his opposition than that he had discovered that the component parts of a branch Mints were not mere workshops but the mechanical execution of constitutional compacts disregard of which, denial of federal authority argon murder etc—all of which constitute the meaning and integrity of Mints and branch Mints no withstanding Pollock and mere workshops per se—that reasons for the recommendation of the people and should be located at points convenient to the raw material and the man who desired to confine their operation to an inconvenient point might as well urge that from foundries brick yards grist mills blacksmith shops etc, necessary to accommodate twenty millions of people should all be located to one village

We read in the Scriptures that Nebuchadnezzar fed on grass but never became fit for beef and from analogy we may infer that Pollock, though continuing an establishment which he regards as embodying all the attributes of "national sovereignty will hardly ever attain a position qualifying him for the proper exercise Nesmith proceeded though to give an exhibit of the country which interests would be subserved by the measure advocated and he thought that the Government, instead of pursuing a niggardly policy toward the hardy pioneers engaged in developing its rich mineral resources should extend to them all necessary facilities for the promotion of enterprises so straight with the present and prospective interests of the nation

The special order for the day coming up at this point no further action was had upon the bill which goes over for the present

THE DANGER OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC —Wherein lies the danger to the American Republic? Is it in the President of the so called Confederacy and his Cabinet and State officers? Is it in the armies of Lee, Longstreet, Bragg, Johnston or the guerrilla bands of Morgan and Forrest? Is it in the Southern climate, which has so long been considered dangerous to Northern citizens? Is it in anything that belongs to, or is within the bounds of the so called Confederate States? We assert, and without fear of contradiction, most emphatically, no not one of these or all combined can break up and destroy this noble Government The danger is within the loyal States, it is immediately around us and among us It exists at the capital of this free republic, and in every precinct within her borders Wherever the present Democratic party rears its head, there is the danger —Shasta Courier

The Chief Quartermaster of the Army of the Potomac has made a requisition for 7 days grain and railroad transportation trains, and says the enemy is reported retreated This indicates Grant's advance, and affords the inference of the material success on our part The enemy's strength has always been mostly felt in his first blows, and these having failed and our forces not only having maintained their ground, but preparing for an advance, leads to the hope of a full and complete success

Dispatches from Gen Sherman, dated 5 o'clock P M yesterday, states that Gen Thomas had occupied Tunnel Hill, where he expected a battle and that the enemy had taken possession of Buzzard Roost Pass north of Dalton

There had been some skirmishing but no fight had taken place

It is designed to give accurate official statements of what is known to the Department in this great crisis and to withhold nothing from the public

Washington, May 5—The Star says that the only official information received from the Army of the Potomac, was through dispatches sent by the Medical Director and Quartermaster to their respective bureaus

The wounded, numbering about 5000 were sent from the battlefield to Rappahannock Station, from whence they will be forwarded to Washington

Among the casualties reported, are Generals Hancock and Gregg killed, and Generals Getty and Owen wounded Two of Burnside's staff were killed while carrying orders

New York May 9 —The news by special dispatches is meagre

The Tribune has the following dated from Washington

Trains loaded with wounded are on their way to Washington, and the hospitals there are ready for their reception

Reports received from rebel sources say that Lee is wounded

The Tribune says the situation may be thus epitomized

On Thursday the army successfully sustained the fierce attack made by the bulk of Lee's army On Friday we attacked and drove them some distance took all their severely wounded prisoner and won a decisive victory On Saturday there was no fighting and Lee was believed to be retreating

The Times has the following special

WASHINGTON, May 8—The latest news from the Army of the Potomac received here is up to seven o'clock P M, yesterday, at which time Gen Grant fully maintained his position The fighting of Thursday and Friday was very severe with skirmishing only On Saturday Lee's first onset was made upon our left, but he then fell upon the centre, finally on the right where the hardest contest took place Here the rebels charged upon our lines twice but were repulsed each time, with severe loss Hancock's corps charged back twice, and at one time entered a portion of the enemy's intrenchments commanded by A P Hill, but at length were compelled to fall back Gen Seymour's division and Hancock's corps was badly cut up Gen Wadsworth and Bartlett were badly wounded.

The rebels were reported retreating yesterday morning

Washington May 8—midnight —A special correspondent writing from Headquarters Wilderness Tavern, Friday evening gives the following regarding the great battle of Friday Day has closed upon the terribly fought field and the Army of the Potomac has added another to its most murderous conflicts Lee's entire employed at Chancellorsville and Gettysburg of throwing his whole army first upon one wing then upon another has been brought to bear, but the Army of the Potomac has repulsed the tremendous onslaughts of the enemy and stands to-night soundly in the position it occupied this morning The first attempt was made upon our right somewhat weakened in numbers by yesterday's battle but the iron old 2d Corps nobly stood its ground The enemy then hurled his columns of men upon Sedgwick's Corps and not once but twice forced temporary advantage but the old veterans of the Sixth Corps nobly rallied and repulsed the rebels with fearful slaughter About half past four o'clock Lee made a feint upon the whole line then suddenly threw with his whole force upon Sedgwick's right and carried temporarily back but the ground was soon regained and the rebels were hurled back with great loss Night had now come on It is believed that the fighting this hour Lee has not withdrawn from the front Though he has been signally repulsed in all his attacks with nothing but the nature of the little field to prevent it from being crushing defeat he seems on both sides heavy but we cannot estimate

The Tribune's Washington special dated at midnight says

Advices received from trustworthy sources represent that Butler has cut off all railroad communication south of Richmond

New York May 9 The report continued at length upon the situation but owing to the meagre character of the operations received thus far they are only of minor opinions

The Tribune says We cannot understand from any information yet received whether Grant has won a decisive victory on the 30 ultimo, but we believe it is regarded as such by the rebels Momentous battles last week are still in progress

The Herald says that all thus far known of the operations of our armies is full of promise and it seems safe to believe that we are achieving

The whole of Butler's special force of 30 000 men I go on naval ?

The news from Sherman's department is

The Times says the formal welcome from Washington will thank high for the splendid victories of the last week and its results may be taken

WASHINGTON May 8—Friday's attack was made by Longstreet on our right while the rebel troops under A P Hill were hurled like hammer against our left wing composed of Hancock's corps Wilcox's corps bearing the centre was also engaged Before calling the assaults The fighting continued with hardly any intermission for two days but by yesterday morning Lee having failed completely in the object with a view to engagement leaving the Army of the Potomac in possession of the field

OREGON BUTTER AND CHEESE —Our [illegible] tion was directed a few days since to several hundred pounds of Oregon made butter cheese, in one of our grocery stores, and could not but contrast the last-season specimens in these articles with that of former years We have the most ample proofs every day that Oregon can produce the best of everything necessary for home consumption and have much left for export, if her farmers will but make the effort In New York they get the best of Orange county butter [illegible] to 28 cents per pound, while here butter retailed at 50 to 75 cents per pound and that too often of an inferior quality, but we are pleased to note a great improvement in the manufacture of butter in Oregon The sale that we get from California is generally wretched stuff and fully one half of what is offered would never, in any other land be dignified by the name of butter Of cheese, the Pettaluma and Napa County brands of California have generally been in advance of our own in price but that is fast becoming reversed and before long we may expect to hear of both Oregon butter and Oregon cheese taking the lead in all the markets of the coast Why we cannot do as before is because the farmers have devoted too much upon the policy of not producing a surplus of any thing for market, until they could obtain exorbitant prices for their produce, and expected our traders to pay them a fortune for on years crop on the other hand the trader has been inclined to limit his goods instead of exchanging for produce and so they have both been to blame for small inducements this each have offered the other and the public at large have been obliged to depend upon foreign markets But we are glad to see a more liberal policy is being pursued, and we trust it will bring about a healthy state of action and bring our business forward, as they have been kept continuously backward

OREGON BUTTER AND CHEESE.—Our attention was directed a few days since to seventy hundred pounds of Oregon made butter and cheese, in one of our grocery stores and we could not but contrast the last season's product to these articles, with that of former years. We have the most ample proofs every day that Oregon can produce the best of every thing necessary for home consumption and have much left for export if her farmers will but make the effort. In New York they can get the best of Orange county butter for 22 to 23 cents per pound, while here it can be retailed at 50 to 75 cents per pound and the too often of an inferior quality, but we are pleased to note a great improvement in the manufacture of butter in Oregon. The article that we get from California in general is a wretched stuff, and fully one half of what is offered would never in any other land be dignified nominated butter. Of cheese, the Petaluma and Napa County brands of California have generally been in advance of our own make, but that is fast becoming reversed and before long we may expect to hear of both Oregon butter and Oregon cheese taking the lead in all the markets of the coast. Why we have not done so before is because the farmers have acted too much upon the policy of not producing a surplus of anything for market unless they could obtain exorbitant prices for their produce, and expected our traders to pay them a fortune for one year's crop—and in the other hand the trader has demanded half the goods instead of exchanging for produce and so they have both been to blame for the small inducements each have offered the other and the public at large have been obliged to depend upon foreign markets. But we are glad to see a more liberal policy is being pursued, and we trust it will bring about a healthy state of action and bring our manufactures forward, as they have been kept continuously backward.

ARRIVAL OF THE SIERRA NEVADA.—This steamship arrived at 5 o'clock last evening from San Francisco. G. L. Murdock Purser, furnishes us with the following memoranda and list of passengers.

Mat. 9th.—Steamship Sierra Nevada, Francis Conner master left San Francisco Mar 7 at 6 P M crossed Columbia River Bar May 10th at 6 A M and arrived at Port Townsend at 2 P M.

PASSENGERS.—Capt E Lyle, Chas Dorlon, J Jackson, John Frazier and child, Henry M Rice, S N Dexter, Joseph Powers & Rosena, G Bacigalupi, G Gilbert, S Alfred, Mr Blake, Mrs Wm Morton, J Boyd and wife and three children, J D Dement, H J Sharon, Mrs Vanderlip, C S Henry, E Z Lowery, P J Sweasell and wife, J Hall, Chas P Smith, Mr Duncan and boy, Leo Hoseens, Mrs Norton, F Norton, D A Simmons and wife, F W Drake, Miss Ella Powers, J Fay, E W Hoadd, J W Dalton, Wm Mitchell, Mrs Moody, B H Train, (Joe Finnell Wells Fargo & Co's agent,) and 88 others. G. L. Murdock, Purser.

COMING TO OREGON.—We learn that Mr Hiram Smith, whose home is in this city, but who has been in the Atlantic States for nearly a year past, has just left the Missouri river for another overland trip to Oregon, accompanied with a number of females. Two years ago Mr S piloted a host of ladies across the plains, all of whom, with one exception, we believe, have since become wedded and prosperous. The exception to the rest will not bear the appellation of "old maid." May —— attend Mr Smith and his fair companion in crossing the sandy deserts, and peace and plenty crown their final efforts.

ORDERS EAST.—Major T. M. Winston, who has for several years been stationed at Fort Vancouver, as paymaster in the Regular Army, has been relieved from duty on that coast, and ordered to report at Washington. Major Winston has the respect of all our citizens, with whom his military duties or social relations have made him acquainted, and will carry with him their best wishes for his health and prosperity.

WHEAT AND CORN.—We have samples of wheat raised in Washington Territory, and corn raised on Sauvie's Island, in this State, which we venture to say will "take the cake" out of any Slocker, and prove to him that Illinois is not the only State in the Union which raises big kernels. The climate and soil of this country is well adapted to the cultivation of the cereals, and they have only to be planted to yield ten fold to the producer.

FROM PUMPHREY'S LANDING.—The steamer Cowlitz, Captain Olson, arrived from Pumphrey's Landing last evening with a full load of freight bringing 105 sacks of oats, 120 sacks of potatoes 50 bales of hay, and some other miscellaneous parcels. She also brought 14 passengers. Trade appears to be increasing on that route, under opposition.

RELIGIOUS NOTICE.—The Oregon State Bible Society will hold their annual meeting at the Presbyterian Church, on Washington street this forenoon at ten o'clock. The sermon before the Society will be preached in the evening, at the same place, by the Rev C C Stratton.

IMPROVEMENT AT THE DALLES.—M. E. M Benson of this city is putting up a very fine business structure at the Dalles for Liloll Brothers. The building is of stone and iron 25 feet front by 90 feet deep. The front roof is iron and the whole is said to be exceedingly beautiful.

CORNELIA POWERS, the child that was so badly burned on Monday last, died at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, after intense suffering. The mother is very grateful for the acts of the many kind friends to relieve the pains of her child.

TRUE PATRIOTISM.—Mr Daniel Wagner, well known in Portland as a true and faithful citizen, leaves on this steamer for the United States, where he intends to join the Union command under General Steel. Our best wishes go with him.

A FINE SALMON.—Mr Richards steward of the steamer John H Couch presented us with a beautiful salmon last evening fresh from the Cascade. We appreciate the favor and can recommend his stock, of which this is a sample, to the public.

PAPERS.—Mr McCormick, of the Franklin Book Store, received a large amount of new periodicals, books and magazines, by the mail yesterday evening. He is generally understood to have a new line, and reasonably so is it by the looks on his counter.

TELEGRAPH TO THE SOUND.—Superintendent Barnes reached Olympia on Friday last and reports the whole route from this city as being but little worse than Oregon to build a line through.

TREASURE.—The messenger of Wells Fargo & Co's Express from the Dalles last evening brought $25,000 in gold.

THE steamer Sierra Nevada will leave this port to-morrow morning at 6 o'clock for San Francisco, via Victoria.

IRON FOUNDERY.—As an indication of the prosperity and development of our section of the Pacific coast we notice that Saunders D Monmastes proprietor of the Columbia Foundery, turning the first plates at his new establishment on Front street, between Taylor and Yamhill. The building is 40 by 100 feet, and is to be erected in the most substantial manner. The machinery and castings for a gold crushing mill are already on hand, and the patterns for a quartz mill are being made. The mill is to be shipped to Boise for operation in the quartz fields there primarily by Spaniards who have recently arrived, as there is nothing better than the mule of this class of their people for extracting metals from rock.

NARROW ESCAPE.—A child in St Helens, daughter of Mr Thomas, narrowly escaped being run over on Sunday last while returning with her father from church. The girl was running some distance ahead of her father, and as they approached the crossing of Milton creek, a cougar jumped from under the bridge caught the child, and bounded in the direction of the forest. The agility of the animal, and the fact that the father was so great, and the cries of the child of such a vehement character that the beast probably became frightened and made off. The girl was not materially injured. Such occurrences are almost unknown in some historical events, in Oregon.

Attention, Millers!—Built this evening at 8 o'clock P M a Farmers' Club room in A Armory's building opposite the Wharf. Chee 11 190 By order of your Chairman.

KEEP IT BEFORE THE PEOPLE.—Leon Stern has received by this steamer the finest assorted stock of Pocket and Table Cutlery that has ever before been offered in this market. An ocular demonstration would convince you of the fact. Go to it and consult your interest.

Oppression after Eating.—Many persons, after eating, experience a sense of weight and discomfort in the region of the stomach, the sure sign of an imperfect digestion, probably the forerunner of a settled dyspepsia. Nothing can give that prostration like the PERUVIAN SYRUP, acts in a powerful manner in stimulating the liver to the proper performance of its duty.

"Who took the Baby?"

Once in a happy home a sweet bright baby died. In the evening, after the funeral, when the family were sitting sadly together, little Jimmie said: "Mamma, who took the baby in the other side room?" "Don't be other side of what, my child?" "Of death, mamma. You always told me God took her here, and she was too little to go alone. Who took her on the other side?"

What will the baby do with
You used to tend and watch
You never gave her
Until God came and
You had her in your arms
Who took the baby on the other side?

Who when she woke was there to bend above her
Watching her waking eyes to speak
To hold her in your arms to
My mother look for
Here, if you did not come she
Who took the baby on the other side?

More tender eyes dear child beheld that waking
Than ever mother bent in her or thee
As I though my heart with
My angel babe will never more for me
For her those blessed
Who took her on the other side

The Rebel Pirates.

The following is a report of the remarks of the Solicitor General in the British House of Commons on the 4th of March, in reply to the strictures of Mr Bebelvre upon the escape of the rebel pirates from British ports

The Solicitor-General said that it was asserted that the Government were acting under dictation, that they had not taken sufficient steps to preserve our territory inviolate from hostile operations, and that they had not vindicated our neutrality Contrary accusations of this kind, it seemed to him, might be left to answer each other In truth, it was with nations as with individuals—impartiality or conduct towards two irritated antagonists was offensive to both His honorable and learned friend had found fault with the Government for not having taken means to stop the vessels referred to which had escaped Without entering into a former statement of our relations with America, he would offer a few remarks on those vessels

In the first place, with respect to the Florida Before she left our shores her Majesty's Government had no sufficient evidence—or, indeed, any evidence—that her destination was to the Confederates She was, however, detained at Nassau, and an inquiry held by a competent court, which resulted in her acquittal His honorable and learned friend said that the acquittal arose from want of evidence Whether it did or not, the Government could not assume in the absence of evidence, that she had actually a Confederate destination Moreover, there was no reason to suppose that she was manned in this country It appears that she was manned from the Confederate States, and, although some Englishmen were among her crew, the Government had no reason to suppose but that the whole, if not the greater part, of her crew, were subjects of the Confederate States So that his honorable and learned friend would see that the Government could not have done otherwise than they did The same remark applies in a great measure to the Georgia When she left there was no evidence to show that she was destined for the Confederate States The Government did, however, received information since that she was manned in great part from Liverpool, and was further induced to institute a prosecution against them there alleged to have been a systematic Confederate enlistment

As to the Alabama Her case was different from that of the other in several respects She had to a certain extent, what might be called exclusively warlike equipments for her decks had sockets for guns, and had the appearance of being a warlike equipment, without actual arming She was built at Liverpool, has many as 40 or 50 men employed in some knowingly, and others ignorant of what they were doing The law officers of the Crown at that time entertained a clear opinion that the Alabama ought not to be allowed to leave Liverpool, and he quite concurred in that opinion The vessel, however, escaped, and he quite agreed with the honorable gentleman who spoke last, that her escape was a misfortune but at the same time a misfortune for which the Government could fairly be made responsible As soon as the evidence was produced it was laid before the law officers, and no delay took place in the proceedings upon it As soon as the opinion of the law officers was given, a telegraph was sent to Liverpool directing that the vessel should be stopped, but she escaped on the very morning that she was going on a trial trip

Her Majesty's Government could not ensure that no vessel should possibly escape, all they were bound to do was to bring a fair and reasonable amount of diligence towards enforcing the law If a series of Alabamas had been able well to escape by similar ruses, the United States Government would have had some ground for saying that her Majesty's Government were maintaining not a real but a fraudulent neutrality, they were concurring at the escape of these vessels, and that they would not put into effect the Foreign Enlistment Act, and they would have had some ground of complaint But he apprehended the conclusive answer of the Government to such a claim, which they distinctly resisted, would be that they had fairly and honestly enforced the Foreign Enlistment Act, and they had done their best to preserve their neutrality [Hear, hear]

Now, with regard to the Rappahannock, his honorable and learned friend was not quite correct in saying that that vessel was fitted out in one of her Majesty's dockyards She was bought as a merchant vessel by agents of the Confederates, and equipped close to the Sheerness dockyard, and the authorities were so far imposed upon as to lend dockyard laborers for the equipment of that vessel She also escaped by a ruse at night; but he begged to say that certainly the law officers of the Government, had no information that that vessel was being fitted out for the Confederate Government until she escaped The equipment was managed with so much secrecy as to elude even the vigilance of Mr Adams. Now, with regard to the men on board of her, the greater part were not aware of the real purpose for which they were enlisted, and it would be extremely harsh, therefore, to institute a prosecution against them He regretted to say that her Majesty's Government had too much reason to suppose that no officer of the dockyard was accessory to the enlistment of these men, knowing the purpose for which they were enlisted, and they had therefore deemed it their duty to institute proceedings against him in the Queen's Bench

He could not agree with his honorable and learned friend that these four vessels were to be treated as essentially British vessels The officers were Confederates, and the vessels had Confederate commissions and he denied that because some Englishmen might have been concerned in equipping them, and some Englishmen might have been on board, that there was any ground for calling them British ships [Hear, hear] He differed with his honorable and learned friend that they ought to pursue and capture these vessels When a vessel was commissioned by a recognized belligerent obliterating the past offenses of the vessel The Government had reason to suppose that these vessels were commissioned by a recognized belligerent, and therefore they could not, consistently with international law, pursue or capture them It might be construed as an act of war against the Confederate States That was a course, therefore, which the law officers would not advise her Majesty's Government to adopt

His honorable and learned friend said that they ought to keep these vessels out of their ports The Queen had a perfect right to keep vessels out of her ports At the same time her Majesty's Government desired to observe neutrality and as they admitted the vessels of the Federal Government into their ports they thought, that if they refused admission to the Confederates they would be accused of oppressing the weak and favoring the strong, and on the whole they thought as far more consistent with real neutrality to allow the vessels of both parties to come into their harbors At the same time he did not conceal that there might be conduct on the part of the Confederates which would justify her Majesty in revoking this permission

His honorable and learned friend next said they ought to make the doings of the Confederates in this country the subject of remonstrance with their Government He agreed with his honorable and learned friend that they did not recognize the Confederates as an independent power, but simply as belligerents, and certainly that was no reason why her Majesty's Government should allow wrongs to be committed by them against her Majesty's subjects and permit a systematic violation of the neutrality of this country [Hear, hear] He must remind his honorable and learned friend that it was more easy to communicate with the Federal Government than with that of the Confederates, and the difficulty in the latter case was not diminished by the Confederates having expelled our consuls from their shores He could assure the House that the subject was under the consideration of her Majesty's Government, and he believed steps would be shortly taken to convey a remonstrance from this Government to the Confederate Government, giving them an opportunity of explaining, if they had an explanation, why it was that their agents acted in this manner, He could only say in conclusion, that it had been the most anxious wish of the Attorney General and himself, as well as her Majesty's Government, to maintain a strict and impartial neutrality under extremely difficult and delicate circumstances, for nothing could be more difficult than to maintain strict impartiality between two exasperated belligerents. [Hear, hear]

A SENATOR WHO DISLIKES COD-FISH —During the first month of the late Legislative session, a well known, honest, practical, but unsophisticated Senator from a Northern mining county, availed himself of the liberality of the California Steam Navigation Company to visit San Francisco between Saturday noon and Monday evening For the sake of enlarging his experience of men and things he concluded for once to stop at a distingue hotel, and so repaired to one where the prices are high enough to match the height of the bed rooms in which bachelors are stowed away In the morning he found his way to the awe-some precincts of the breakfast room A waiter placed a bill of fare before him, which he carefully perused, and then made a judicious selection for his repast, without, however, revealing it to the waiter, who stood at his elbow for several minutes and then glided away Our Senator saw another waiter approach after awhile, but made no sign and spoke no word, and was again left alone Several other guests took their seats at the same table, gave their orders, were served, finished their meal and departed, the Senator still expecting to be asked what he would have, and the servants waiting to be told He related the sequel of the matter to a friend in the following words "I waited about half an hour and nobody said a word to me I was as hungry as a bear, and finally got up, took my hat in disgust, and went out to a restaurant, where I got a good square meal. You don't catch me at any more of your cod fish hotels"—S F. Bulletin

Notwithstanding the zeal and ability which have been devoted to its investigation, it remained almost useless until Dr Henry Anders, a physician and chemist of New York after years of patient labor and experiment, discovered a chemical process which enabled him to dissolve

without a solvent This, considered impossible by the scientific world, is attested by certificates of such as from Dr J R Chilton of this city, and Prof Booth, U S Mint, Philadelphia The importance of this discovery was highly appreciated by the Faculty that it was published to the Medical Journals and its use recommended to correct errors (see 'American Medical Monthly,' July 5, 1862, page 76)

This valuable medicine is now available to the public for the cure of Scrofula in all its manifold forms, Consumption, Cancer Heart, Liver and Kidney Diseases, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Affections, Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, etc
